I have often found myself searching for a clue
 I was sure there was a plan God had for me to do
 I listened for a whisper, I searched for a sign
 It took some time for me to find the decision was all mine

So I carved a trail, where none had gone before
 I began my journey, as I walked out of the door
 I thought that I would be alone, and friendless on this trip
 Then I find familiar faces, all aboard my ship

*You can walk around the world and soon be home again
 It's just fine if where you end is the same as you begin
 Although your path is different, and to some seem rather odd
 You will soon discover another road to God*

Although my path is different, and to some seem rather odd
 I will soon uncover another road to God
